

H. Arnold Muller, MD, Emergency Medicine Resident Scholarship Award

Presented by the American Trauma Society, Pennsylvania Division

H. Arnold Muller, MD, FACEP, a 1953 graduate of Dartmouth Medical School, was the founding Chief of Emergency Medicine at the Penn State Milton S. Hershey Medical Center in 1973. Later, as the Pennsylvania Secretary of Health, Dr. Muller fought for the accreditation of trauma centers and for the development of training standards for Emergency Medical Technicians. From 1987 to 2003, Dr. Muller served as Chief of the Emergency Department at the Lebanon, PA VA Medical Center. He retired from practice in 2003. Dr. Muller served on the American Trauma Society, PA Division Board of Directors for over 30 years before achieving emeriti status in 2014. The H. Arnold Muller, MD, Emergency Medicine Resident Scholarship Award is bestowed by the PA Division of the American Trauma Society to an emergency medicine resident in Pennsylvania who displays the highest standards in professionalism and patient interaction, areas in which Dr. Muller excelled.
